

Detailed Synopsis for Stigma

Much of the show references body shame. Luis explains how he has been made to feel uncomfortable in his body. In a scene at school, as a child, he realises he is perceived as a boy so this makes him feel bad about having female friends; he also explains how people tried to get him to be more 'like a boy' or do certain things like football; in a scene in a gay sauna (with some nudity) his internal monologue is about whether men will desire him for his body hair.

The content is all spoken by the performer, rather than re-enacted.
